From another Dear Friend, Tim Doody.your mom's impact in my life is indescribable. Among many things she was the first person in my life to elaborate and tell me who I am and totally emphasized the negative. There was good stuff too LOL. But I could see in her eyes how much she loved me.
Good job Mom ❤️

From another dear dear friend and family Kevin Clower. The power of ritual The coming together to mourn The coming together to celebrate The lighting of the candles for Shabbat Touching the bread or challah Saying the words Being amongst family It's a really beautiful thing to feel welcome and wanted and needed and loved From one generation to another to another To hear the stories and see the tears and see the smiles I have known the Keefe clan for 35 or so years going back to the high school days. There is something about going through adolescence together that is a singularly unique time in ones life You are raw and really just trying to figure out where you belong Through D&D sessions in the front room or Pizza parties or playing frisbee on Wilshire - it just felt right and comfortable and there was no BS Mrs Keefe and the Keefe Clan always made we feel welcome and wanted and needed and loved And - I felt like I belonged Not necessarily in this warm embrace sort of way but more like a smack on the head or the way you run a dogs ears roughly so you know they can feel Mrs Keefe always had a twinkle in her eye, a wry smile on her face and a wise guy comment that kept you on your toes. She also made me feel welcome, wanted, needed and loved and I felt like I belonged And I get that sense of belonging here today. It feels right to be here with her and for her and for each other. Telling stories and cracking jokes and no BS So Thank You Mrs Keefe and the Keefe Clan for making people feel welcome, wanted, needed and loved and creating a sense of Belonging.
